

South end of Garfield Street with post office and the Rolfe Lounge on the right and the Pro Cooperative grain elevators in the distance, 1996.

Above left: the Rolfe Presbyterian Church, 1982. The Presbyterians and Methodists merged in the 1990s to form the Shared Ministry of Rolfe. Eventually, the group desecralized the Presbyterian building, auctioned off accessories, including the elaborate stained glass windows, and razed the facility in 1996.

Pronto convenience store, 1996.

Pocahontas Area Community school district school bus, southwest of Rolfe, west of Reigelsberger and Gunderson farms, 1996.

Corner of Garfield and Walnut Streets and the Rolfe Public Library, 2001.

Clinton-Garfield Cemetery with Pro Cooperative grain elevators in distance, 2000.

Boys at Streit Park, 1983. Women at Rolfe's 125th, 1988. Poppy sellers, 1986.

Greater Rolfe Days parade, 2003.

Rolfe Fire Department's antique truck on parade, 1987.

Parade watchers on steps of old bank building, 1986.

Parade watcher, c1988.

View of Garfield Street, looking southwest from the Conoco station, 1979.

Abandoned Rolfe school building, April 19, 2004. The building on the left was built in 1907 and is scheduled to be razed.

RHS 1973 jazz band and choir. Trombonists: Lynn Robinson, Julie Brinkman, Al Sroufe, and Joe Shimon.
Drummer: Randy Martin. Chorus line singers: Hope Howard, Dave Spencer, Louise Gunderson, and Gaius Ives.

Soda fountain at Calligan's Sundries, circa late 1970s. Women, left to right: LaVonne Howland, Rose Calligan, and Erla Howland.

East side of Garfield Street, 2005. The building on the right opened in 2004 and houses the Rolfe Public Library, city hall, and community center.